

Mrs. Varsalona's Pre-K Students

They have learned to recite the Pledge of Allegiance, their date of birth, and locate the city and state where they live at on a map. They have learned many ways to describe who they are and what makes their family special. They have also learned how to be good helpers at school and in their neighborhoods. The children have learned to explore the idea that they are part of larger communities and that although people around the world are different, they are also alike in many important ways.
