

The Washington County School District and Sheriff's Office are aware of the social media activity over the last two days referencing possible school threats. These social media posts began referencing several counties throughout the state from Miami-Dade to the Florida panhandle, and Washington County is now among this online TikTok chatter, along with local and state colleges. This has been investigated by school administrations, SROs, the district Safety Director, and the Washington County Sheriff's Office, and we have found no evidence or information with any credible threats at this time to students, staff or schools.

Please know your child's and our employee's safety are our number one priority as we educate and protect our students. Parents can assist by monitoring their children's book bags, reviewing their children's social media content, and speaking with their children about the importance of not saying or posting inappropriate or false information. Please encourage them to report all inappropriate activity which will assist us in eliminating this activity.

Thank you for your partnership with the Washington School District and the Washington County Sheriff's Office.

Joseph Taylor, Superintendent of School
Sheriff Kevin Crews, Washington County
Kimberly Register, Washington County Schools Safety Director